Cookies

By visiting our Website, a permanent “cookie” (small text file) will be attributed to you and stored on the hard drive of your computer. The cookie is used to identify you when you visit our Website so that we can improve your browsing experience on the Website and personalize your online experience: automatic recognition, memorising your favourite destinations, etc.

We also collect technical information on your computer every time you open a page during your visit to our Website. This information relates to your IP (Internet Protocol) address, the operating system you use, your type of browser and the address of a website of origin, where appropriate. We collect this information to improve the quality of your experience when visiting our Website, and do not sell or transfer this information to third parties.

Most browsers automatically accept these cookies, but you are able to remove them or activate the refusal of cookies. Every browser is different so you must check how to change your cookie preferences in your browser’s “Help” menu. The behaviour of the Website remains the same and all features are accessible. If you choose to block cookies, you will not have access to the many features that make this Website more efficient, and some of our services will not function properly.
